

Migration to Morocco
and
The United Kingdom

Edited by

Mohamed Laamiri

Driss Ouaouicha

| TABLE OF CONTENTS |

OPENING SPEECHES:

- Mr. Abdelkrim Bennani, Executive Vice President, MBS p 7
- Mr. Anis Birou, Minister in Charge of Moroccans Residing Abroad and Migration Affairs p 9
- Mr. John Mitchel OBE, British Council Director, Morocco p 15

ARTICLES:

- Introduction p 19
Mohamed Laamiri, Driss Ouaouicha
- Quelle intégration des migrants en Europe ? p 23
Aicha Belarbi, (Université Mohamed V, Rabat)
- Transnational Lives and 'Local' Identities: The Case of Moroccans in London p 45
Myriam Cherti, (Oxford University, UK)
- Moroccan Jewish Return: Between Myth and Reality p 73
Sami Everett, (Cambridge University, UK)
- Crise économique en Espagne et migrations de retour des marocains: Stratégies transnationales de mobilité p 84
Alberto Capote, (University of Granada, Spain)
- Migration, Integration and Migrants' Rights: Here and There p 103 f
Khadija Elmadmad, (Centre UNESCO Droits et Migrations, CUDM, Maroc)
- Moroccan-European Couples: Stigma and Shifting Legal Perspectives p 117
Laura Odasso (Université Libre de Bruxelles, Belgique)
- Mediterranean Dreams and Predicaments: A Cinematic Perspective on Transnational Migration in Morocco and the UK p 148
Jamal Bahmad (Leeds University, UK)

Migration, Integration and Migrants' Rights Here and There

With special reference to Morocco and UK

Khadija Elmadmad¹

Introduction

Migration is generally defined as any population movement from one place to another or from one country to another in order to reside either temporarily or permanently. Migrants have got, therefore, countries where they live or countries of residence and countries from which they come from or countries of origin.

Migration has always existed during all times and in all countries. It is linked to humanity. Migration is of different types and differs according the reasons of migration and the ways and means used to migrate. We generally distinguish between international and internal migration (within a country or crossing the international borders), emigration (leaving a country) and immigration (entering a foreign country), voluntary and forced migration (whether migrants are obliged to move or not), regular and irregular migration (using or not legal means and procedures of migration).

To each kind of migration applies a specific law, generally known as migration law. This law includes national and international ¹ Khadija Elmadmad is a Law Professor, an Advocate and an International Consultant. She is, at present, the Director of the UNESCO Centre "The Law and Migration" (CUDM), which is based in Rabat (Morocco). She was before the Tenure of the UNESCO Chair "Migration and Human Rights" at Casablanca Ain Chock University and the Coordinator of the Postgraduate Programme on Migration and the Law at the Faculty of Law of Casablanca University. She has given courses and seminars in Morocco and abroad on Public Law, Human Rights and Migrants' Rights and she has written in Arabic, French and English on these themes and other themes.